FOE BOTTLES U.S. FLEET UP IN PANAMA CANAL

Surprises Weak Fort Defense.

By JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
(Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune.)
COLON, Jan. 18.—Today apparently was decisive in the war maneuvers being staged between the "Black" (enemy) and "Blue" (home) fleets for possession of the Panama canal. Rear Admiral Newton McCully's "Black" fleet crushed a large detachment of the "Blue" fleet leaving the canal, and by Hobbesing the transport Henderson he leaves the remaining "Blue" ships bottled up in the partly blocked canal.

Rear Admiral McCully's control of the Caribbean today is a supreme lesson to the nation that the canal is undamaged and undamaged. Its land defenses were as badly shattered by the "Black" fleet as the "Blues" had no shelter for deploying after leaving the canal.

Daring Dash Takes Port.
The careful planning and daring execution, which has put the enemy fleet in possession of the Atlantic end of the Panama canal, reached its high point in the dash upon Port Randolph at 4 o'clock yesterday morning by 1,200 men from the "Black" (enemy) fleet. This force was not paper, but actually moved seventeen miles in the darkness through rough seas from Portobello, republic of Panama, to Silmy beach, lying under the guns of Fort Randolph, the most important section of the canal's side.

Light High Seas.
The landing force made their way in the fort motor sailboats in a sea running so high that half the troops were desperately sick. One officer remarked that he was so sick on leaving the boat that he did not believe he could make the necessary five miles. Some of the men lay on the beach like dead animals after their three hour ordeal on the water.

Approaching Fort Randolph under a smoke screen, 400 marines effected a disembarkation, but not without drawing the fire of the garrison, which was heavily defended. Five hundred or more marines landed from the fifty foot boats and came in on the wildcats who, now slaving in the front and rear, were captured.

A pretty incident amid the exterminating was the rescue by one of Fort Randolph's artillery men of a marine from the enemy fleet who was washed overboard from a small boat. Having rescued the dripping object and poured him out, the artillery man welcomed him alive and his prisoner.

Take Air Base.
Meanwhile three hundred more of the "Black" fleet's marines, sweeping a mile to the southward, captured Colono, meaning lone coconut; the "Blue" defense navy's aircraft base, meaning there only seventy aviators and mechanics, whose resistance would only be logistical. All the planes were then out scouting were captured, together with workshops and supplies.

Thus, by the "Black's" beautiful operation, occupying three hours in land and fifteen minutes in landing, the "Blue" fleet, under mean country and your $500,000,000 canal plan—has lost Fort Randolph, one of the canal's two most important defenses and his aircraft base. Not only that, but with Fort Randolph's batteries silenced the "Black" fleet can certainly win, draw $1,000,000,000, and the canal, which obviously will increase the possibilities of its effective bombardment of the canal's utility.

Beyond Fort's Guns.
On that grave situation the fact that drawing closer, the "Black" fleet will be beyond the range of the "Blue" fleet's batteries, which are supposed to protect the western sector of the Atlantic side, the whole Fort Randolph disaster perfectly illustrates the necessity it is when you put down a defense like Fort Randolph's, which is sufficient to provide a motive force sufficient to protect the balance. Any child can comprehend that, but not the American people.

Another specific lesson from Fort Randolph's loss is that far more can be done from small boats on this coast than was supposed. Hence the canal situation cries out for a measure of defense which no American man-of-war would begrudge his plan. That insurance is more infantry and more heavy patrol. Sufficient navy patrol could have turned yesterday morning's audacity, which now, from Panama to Balboa, is on the tongue of the nation.

Use Dynamite in Battle to Nab Trotsky

BY JOHN STEELE.
(Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune.)
LONDON, Jan. 18.—The British foreign office received a report from Moscow concerning an attempt made ten days ago by members of the Cheka, Russia's secret police, to kidnap Leon Trotsky, war minister and commander in chief of the Russian army, who was recently ordered by physicians to take a two months' vacation. The plot failed owing to the loyalty of M. Trotsky's guards.

M. Trotsky lives in a palace formerly belonging to an oil magnate, which is surrounded by a high stone wall and which is closely guarded. At midnight an armored car and two lorries full of men dashed up to the iron gate and demanded that it be opened in the name of the Cheka.

The guards refused and the Chekaists blew down the gate with dynamite, but they were confronted by barbed wire entanglements and a series of concrete pill boxes from which the guards opened fire, killing two attackers. An attempt was made by the guard to telephone for help, but the wires were cut. A soldier dropped over a wall and fetched a detachment of the Red army. The Chekaists fled.

It is stated that M. Trotsky was not in the house that night. It is also said that the Cheka has disavowed the agents, saying they were impostors.

Extraordinary stories are circulating in Moscow about M. Trotsky flitting with monarchists and a plot to make him dictator under a puppet czar.

Trotsky's whereabouts a mystery. MOSCOW, Jan. 18.—(United Press.)—Efforts to locate Leon Trotsky, Russian war minister, following publication of reports in Paris that he had been arrested, resulted in conflicting information from various sources. It was officially stated that M. Trotsky is ill at his summer home near Moscow.

A week ago one of the high officials of the Russian government said the war minister had departed for Suchum in the Caucasus. The war department today declared M. Trotsky is at Jugo in the Crimea.

M'ADOO STRONG FOR BOK SCHEME TO 'STOP WARS'
Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—(Special.)—William G. M'Adoo, former secretary of the treasury and candidate for the Democratic nomination for the presidency, supports the referendum now being conducted on the winning plan in the coo petition for a prize of $100,000 offered by Edward W. Bok of Philadelphia for the best practical plan by which the United States might cooperate with other nations to prevent war. Mr. M'Adoo has written a letter to a friend in which he praises the purpose of the Bok peace award.

"The Bok peace award," the letter says, "has a noble purpose, not alone to stimulate and concentrate the best thought and ability of the American people upon a practical plan for world peace, but also to secure through an informal referendum an index of American opinion, not specifically upon the plan itself, but upon the principle involved in the issue."

The senate committee appointed yesterday to investigate alleged propaganda declined today to alter its plan at the request of Edward W. Bok, donor of $100,000 for the peace plan to which his name is commonly attached. Mr. Bok has been asked to appear Monday as the first witness.

Trail Thieves By Day; Then Rob at Night

Hugh Engle, until recently an assistant manager of the Burns National Detective agency, and J. Gleason Walker, an expert "shadow," who has been in the employ of several Chicago agencies, confessed last night that they were the after-theater gunmen who robbed more than fifteen wealthy victims of $15,000 in jewels and money in the last few months.

The two detectives admitted they were committing holdups while still in the employ of the agencies for combating crime.

Others Are Implicated.
They were arrested after weeks of sleuthing by Sgt. Hugh McCarthy and his squad at the detective bureau. Both men implicated others in their confessions, including a deputy Municipal court bailiff. The latter is also being held as a disposer of some of the loot.

Both Engle and Gleason declared they had been tipped off by "higher-ups" as to the names of persons wearing expensive jewelry. These "higher-ups," they said, would accompany them to the theater and point out the intended victims as they were leaving the playhouse. Using their sleuthing ability, the two detectives would then follow the victims to their homes, waylay them, and strip them of their valuables.

Victim Identifies Them.
Both were positively identified by Mrs. Ida C. Jacobson, 4338 North Kimball avenue, as the men who on Nov. 3 gained entrance by flashing their badges, choked her until she revealed the hiding place of $10,000 worth of jewelry, and escaped with that and $6 in money.

Engle at that time was still in the employ of the Burns agency and Gleason is said to have been working for the Pinkerton agency. Gleason also was employed at various times by Burns and Hargrave.

Engle confessed to five or six other holdups besides the Jacobson robbery, but denied he was in others to which Gleason confessed.

"When we name some of the higher-ups who helped dispose of the stuff and who gave us tips on jobs," said Engle, "it will rock the town."

Jack Frost Cut Again Today to Nip City's Ears
Get out those earmuffs again today. Yesterday's respite from snow blasts was only temporary, according to the weather man, and the cold wave is coming back. It will be colder today and the mercury again will be hovering around the zero mark tomorrow morning.

Sprague Out for Beer and Light Wines

Col. Albert A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, last night announced the principal plank in the platform on which he will stand for the Democratic nomination for United States senator. They are:

- 1 Modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer.
- 2 Payment of a federal bonus, limited to those ex-service men who while on active duty made allotments to dependents.
- 3 A small but "damned good" army.

He admitted he is undecided as to the merits of the league of nations or world court plan and as yet has adopted no definite attitude toward other internal problems.

On Fence About League.
"I listened with interest to Lord Robert Cecil and thought the league of nations a wonderful plan," declared Col. Sprague last night. "Later I heard other explanations of the scheme and changed my mind. At present I am neither for nor against the league—simply studying it. My feelings toward the world court are much the same."

"I am deeply interested in the various plans for reduction of taxes, but I am not prepared to say which is the most practical solution. However, I have long contended that one of the greatest dangers confronting this country is the practice of allowing tremendous fortunes to pass from one generation to another. I have seen boys ruined and socialists and worse made overnight because of it."

Light Wines and Beer.
"I have always been in favor of the return of light wines and beer, although I use neither," continued the colonel. "I would not, nor would any other reasonable person, vote for the return of the gin mill or grog shop, however."

"I am in favor of a proper bonus for former service men. In recent months I have suggested to the congressional ways and means committee that such a bonus should be paid. In fact, with former Secretary of the Interior Lane, I aided Representative Mondell in framing the so-called Lane-Mondell fourfold bonus plan bill, which was lost in the shuffle at Washington."

"During the war, when the government forced certain soldiers to make allotments of their pay to dependents at home and augmented these allotments with another from the national treasury, I admitted that the service was a hardship for the men and their families."

"Pay Heal Sufferers."
"If a bonus was paid to these men who made allotments, those who actually suffered by reason of the service would, in a measure, be recompensed, and the expense of a federal bonus, which is the greatest argument against such a payment, would be materially reduced."

"I'm for a small but damned good army," added the colonel. "But I would not countenance further diminutions. I believe that in the main the defense bill as passed in Washington is good."

"I don't propose to resign my present post in order to seek the senatorial nomination and election. If, however, it is thought better that I should, I will carry on as commissioner of public works, relinquishing the salary and title, but not the work."

The colonel declared his earlier decision to refuse the nomination if it was offered him at Springfield or in the primaries was set aside when Mayor Dever pointed out that it was his duty to accept the greater responsibility.

Sufficient progress could be made before 1925, the mayor declared, to insure completion of the major projects now being handled by the public works department.

MRS. LELAND DELUDED, TO BE PLEA IN COURT

Divorce Scandal in Oak Park Grows.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.
At a secret meeting last night at the home of the Rev. Carl D. Case, 296 North Grove avenue, Oak Park, a vestry committee of the First Baptist church, investigating charges naming their pastor as co-respondent in the Albert R. Leland divorce case, planned to introduce court testimony by a Chicago neurosis specialist that Mrs. Charlotte Leland is insane.

While the delegates, who insisted behind barred windows that they came as friends and not as demons, were talking of the alienist's testimony, Mrs. Leland's relatives seemed to prefer that the middle aged woman stand on her confession of breaking the marriage vow rather than to accept the charge that she is abnormally mentally.

"Not Crazy," Kinsman Says.
"One thing is certain, Mrs. Leland is not crazy," is the only definite statement that was made yesterday at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Beach Loomis, 333 Wisconsin avenue, where Mrs. Leland is now ill in bed.

Back and forth the suburban scandal gyrated yesterday. At one moment it swung to the side of a lurid sensational revelation of a hidden love affair, fostered under the dome of the church. At the next it swung back again as a grotesque hoax in which a nervous woman made a victim of a kindly but ignorant clergyman.

In spite of the earlier announcement that a special committee would meet at the pastor's house at 8 o'clock last night and prepare an official vindication to the public, promptly at 8 Attorney Delbert A. Clithero of the church answered the bell at the Case home and said there would be no meeting.

Members Are Elusive.
Telephone calls to the homes of the members of the committee brought the unanimous reply that the gentlemen were at the vestry meeting at the Case home. The men on the committee include: Addison E. Wells, 179 North Grove avenue; Charles S. Burton, 311 North Grove; George S. O. Foreman, 281 Iowa street; and John Moler, 420 North Elm avenue.

At 9 o'clock the men, peering from behind the curtains at the parsonage, lowered the blinds still further. Shortly afterwards, the meeting was over.

"But it was no committee. That committee disbanded long ago. Its report was made last November," a spokesman said. "We came here just as friends. There is no statement of any kind."

Pass Out Resolutions.
Another spokesman passed out copies of resolutions adopted yesterday afternoon by the Oak Park and River Forest Pastors' union and other local ministers, at a meeting called by Dr. William E. Barlow.

The resolutions read in part:

"Resolved, That we assure Dr. Case of our unchanged and unshaken confidence in him. We assert this confidence in view of his five years' outstanding ministry in Oak Park, his untarnished record of twenty-seven years in the Christian ministry, and our personal knowledge of him.

"Resolved, That we extend to Dr. Case and his family our sincere sympathy and assure them of our prayerful remembrance."

The document was signed by twenty-seven ministers.

Forget Name of Specialist.
Still another gentleman told about the alienist who, he declared, had already examined Mrs. Leland. This specialist, whose name they had all "forgotten," will be introduced into the trial, they said. If Judge Ford this morning grants the petition to be filed by Attorney Frederick A. Brown, counsel for the minister.

The petition shows that "never, at the time alleged in said bill, nor at any other time or place, was he [Dr. Case] ever guilty of adultery with the defendant, Charlotte C. Leland; that he never kissed her, nor put his arm around her, nor took any liberties whatever with the said defendant; that he never at any time made love or talked love to her at any time or place, and that he never at any time or place discussed sex matters with said Charlotte C. Leland."

Recites Case's Career.
The petition then traces the divine's ministerial career from the Oak Park church back to the Delaware Avenue Baptist church, Buffalo, N. Y., ten years; Hanson Place Baptist church, Brooklyn, N. Y., four years; First Baptist church of Mount Clair, N. J., two years; First Baptist church of Tarrytown, Ind., two years, and First Baptist

JONES, SPRAGUE TOP DEMOCRATIC SLATE IN ILLINOIS

Brennan Wins; Delegates to Go Uninstructed.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

(Picture on back page.)

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—A well-attended steam roller, backed by the Brennan "shock troops" of Cook county, stood idle at the Democratic state advisory convention today.

The use was unnecessary, but had it been needed it could have flattened out all opposition.

Today's convention, the most harmonious Jeffersonian gathering in Illinois history, was merely a ratification of the state slate picked by George E. Brennan and his Chicago and downstate lieutenants in their caucus early this morning.

Only One Flicker of Revolt.
There was only one roll call. That was on the convention's choice for lieutenant governor. This was the only office over which there was any show of rebellion against the Brennan slate, four other candidates being presented after State Representative Ferdinand A. Garesche, permanent mayor of Madison, was placed in nomination by the organization machine.

On the roll call, with 546 votes necessary to nominate, Garesche received 54. His nearest opponent was ex-Judge James T. Burns of Kankakee, who got 310 votes, 100 of them from Cook county.

The Chicago delegation gave Garesche 727 and 50 to Judge Albert E. Berglund of Galva, whose total was 278. C. E. Schneider of Paxton received 14 votes. R. A. May of Aurora, 43, and William Fox of Shelbyville, 29.

After the roll call Judge Burns immediately pledged his support to Garesche and moved that his nomination be made unanimous.

High Spot of Convention.
The big "hurray" of the convention, as everybody anticipated, was the endorsement of Judge Norman L. Jones of Carrollton for governor. His name was presented to the convention by Justice Floyd E. Thompson of the Illinois Supreme court.

But the harmony today gives no assurance of continued tranquility in the Democratic ranks of Illinois on primary day, April 8. When the Brennan forces dumped the senatorial aspirations of James H. Hanlon Lewis out of their hotel window last night and enticed on Col. A. J. Sprague of Chicago, Mayor Dyer's commissioner of public works, they threw down a challenge to the McAdoo crowd headed by Lewis and William L. O'Connell.

Delegates Go Uninstructed.
Today they went further than that in the convention and picked a slate of uninstructed delegates to the New York convention, June 24. Lewis' recent avowal of support to McAdoo and the veiled challenge to Lewis' candidacy were enough to go through with his whole program for an uninstructed delegation.

McAdoo supporters, without leadership. Neither ex-Senator Lewis nor O'Connell came to the capital. The Chicago delegation was solid for the Brennan program and downstate supporters of Woodrow Wilson's son-in-law made no attempt to fight.

Interest in the Jones candidacy for governor was the main reason why McAdoo and Lewis followers fell into line. "It is safe to say that any rival slate put up by the Lewis-O'Connell crowd and perhaps headed by Lewis for senator will find little organization support downstate for a candidate against Jones."

Prophecies Differ Widely.
Astute and seasoned campaigners are divided in their predictions. Some believe the convention's action today means a hot primary battle all down the line, while others think the only hostilities that will amount to anything will be on the national convention delegates, if McAdoo comes into Illinois to wage war with the regulars in an effort to get a pledged delegation from this state.

The endorsement of Col. Sprague was enthusiastic. When the Chicago delegation reached Springfield they believed Lewis would be presented as a candidate for United States senator and that a primary row over delegates might thus be averted. The private and public followers of Lewis suddenly like a hot stove lid as soon as the leaders began discussing Col. Sprague.

Mayor Dyer strenuously objected to the selection of either Col. Sprague or Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch, protesting against a break in his cabinet.

Why Dyer O. K.'d Sprague.
"I agreed," the mayor said, "only on the condition that Col. Sprague remain with me until December, 1925, and as long thereafter as his senatorial duties will permit, if he is elected. He will not resign to make the race and Chicago will not lose his splendid services."

News that Col. Sprague had been selected brought a quick protest from Clarence Darrow, who wired from Chicago.

"Is it possible the Democratic committee would endorse Sprague? No Democrat could vote for a standpat Republican who never expressed a Democratic idea. It would be better to endorse McCormick."

His Services in His Asset.
Col. Sprague's public service and civic activities were declared by his backers to be his chief asset. He is a stronger candidate under present conditions, they declare, because he has never been regarded as a politician.

The Democrats enjoyed themselves in lambasting all Republican factions and disporting themselves in the wreckage of the Republican party.

Women played an important part in the convention. The name of Dr. Romanus Mann was withdrawn as a candidate for congress at large by Mrs. Catherine Wagoner McCormick after Mrs. Mary W. Hart of Benton had been placed in nomination by Katherine O'Laughlin and seconded by her fellow townsman Walter Williams, who had also withdrawn.

Mrs. Anna L. Smith of Chicago, woman member of the Democratic national committee, seconded the nomination of Judge Jones.

Mr. Brennan and Mayor Dyer

DEMOCRATS LAUNCH SLATE AFTER BRIEF STATE CONVENTION

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—The Democratic "regular" slate is as follows:

For United States senator—Col. Albert A. Sprague, Chicago.

For governor—Judge Norman L. Jones, Carrollton.

For lieutenant governor—State Representative Ferdinand A. Garesche, Madison.

For secretary of state—Andrew Olson, Moline.

For state treasurer—John T. Martin, St. Louis.

For auditor—State Senator Edward J. Hughes, Chicago.

For attorney general—Thomas F. Donovan, Joliet.

For congress at large—Allen D. Albert, Peoria, and Mrs. Mary W. Hart, Benton.

Delegates at large to national convention—Mayor William E. Dever, Chicago; Henry S. Dixon, Lee county; George E. Brennan, Chicago; County Clerk Robert M. Switzer, Chicago; Frank J. Quinn, Peoria; Roy D. Roehn, Chicago; Mrs. Anna L. Smith, Chicago, and Bruce Campbell, East St. Louis.

Alternate delegates at large—William Lechner, Chicago; W. E. P. Anderson, Macoupin county; M. A. Carroll, Clayton; F. Smith, and Philip Giesberg, Chicago; Charles E. Chalmers, McHenry county; John E. Hogan, Christian county, and Asa J. Greenhouse, Edgar county.

Wound up the convention with expressions of confidence in the strength of the ticket.

The "wets," who staged a demonstration for County Treasurer Patrick J. Carr last night by booming him for governor, kept the convention in constant knowledge of their presence by shouting, "Is he wet?" when a candidate was nominated.

ARREST NEAR OF UNION STATION BANDITS, REPORT

Postal officials announced last night that they expected to arrest the principals in the $1,000,000 Union Station mail robbery of Jan. 17, 1921, within the next twelve hours. A roundup of men who aided in the disposal of bonds and money orders obtained in the robbery has been going on for several days and ten men, it is said, have been arrested.

Postal officials and the police, who are adding them, have refused to make public the names of the men sought for the actual robbery. Reports have named Johnny Rio and Frank Lafferty as the leaders. Lafferty, known as a gunman, has been seen in a south side saloon recently and is now under surveillance, reports say. Rio is said to have an underworld reputation.

More bond dealers are expected to be questioned today in an effort to trace some of the bonds.

FOUR YOUTHS HOLD UP TAILOR.

Four youthful bandits held up Philip Kato in his tailor shop, 2141 Sherman avenue, and secured with a small sum of money late yesterday afternoon.

THAT SAMSON STORY RECEIVES O. K. OF SCIENCE

Hairy Men Are Strong

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—

Science bears out the Bible story about Samson losing his strength when his hair was clipped.

It is now well established that the hairy man is the powerful man, Dr. V. D. Leepinase of Chicago said today in addressing a meeting of business men at the Union League club.

Dr. Leepinase, the surgeon who operated upon Everett McCormick and attracted wide attention by gland transplantation operations to restore man's vigor.

What Glands Do.

"Secretions from glands," he said, "are directly responsible for the energy and virility of a man or woman, and different amounts from various glands will give one man an undershot jaw, make another tall and thin or stout and fat."

"Transplantation of the glands is not to rejuvenate old men and make them young, but to stimulate and help build bodily vigor in those persons who lack sufficient gland secretion and to help those persons to have children who otherwise can't. It might be possible to jazz up an old fellow for a short period, as you would paint over an old car and fix it up, but sooner or later something is bound to break."

"In order to produce the so-called rejuvenation the patient must be young and of sufficiently good health to effect some remedy."

The Aim of Science.

"The sex glands have two functions and give off a double secretion, one external and one internal. The internal fluid from the male gland gives the masculine shape to the body, the deep voice and other characteristics; the same function is true in the female, the internal secretion giving the higher voice, hairless face, and the feminine figure."

"We are trying to segregate the internal and external secretions, and should we have success in doing this it will be possible to build men in points where they are weak or undeveloped."

His 1776 Thimble Proves Identity

New York, Jan. 18.—A silver thimble, carried through the revolution, the civil, and the Indian wars, by three members of an old family of New Jersey, was exhibited today in Raymond street jail by 72-year-old George Doty to prove to 82-year-old Margaret Latimer that he was her long lost son.

The first soldier Doty, one of Marlton's men, was given a thimble for his kit when he left his cabin home in the Jersey woods. When he died he gave it to a son. That son's wife used it in sewing for soldiers of 1812, and it was passed on to her son, who carried it through the civil war.

George Doty was away.

It fell into the hands of George when he was west of the Mississippi for the Indian wars. Twenty-five years ago he left his home in Branchville, N. J., for a trip to Brooklyn. His father died and his mother married again, and George's whereabouts was unknown to her until she read last week that a suddenly had sent a letter bidding her good-bye. She couldn't understand it and had come to see him. She went to his room and wrote the note to him.

The note upbraideth Thayer for his change of heart.

"In your letter of Jan. 8," it read in part, "you said I was your all and only love, and you were planning so much for our future cheerful home and that no one but me could make one for you."

"About to Wed Another."

"And then only four days later you wrote me that other letter, but first you had written me letters on the 17th, 18th, and 19th, all fine love letters protesting your undying love for me. And then came the 19th. You wrote me it was your final letter, that you were through with me and were about to marry another girl."

Thayer's trunk was found to be filled with love letters from dozens of women in Chicago and other cities. His evidently subscribed to a large number of matrimonial journals and bureaus. He had cards from astrologers, mediums, and healers of all sorts, and appears to have kept a brief diary of each love affair.

Widow Identifies Body.

Mrs. Mitchell, when taken into custody, identified Thayer's body. She said the last letter she had received from him—the one bidding her good-bye—appeared to be in much smaller handwriting. She admitted Keith had tampered with her mail, but denied any love affair with Thayer. She declared it was she who balked at a wedding after Thayer had obtained the license in Jackson.

Keith said he left Detroit on the same day Thayer left Chicago. In detailing his moves he described a route passing within 400 yards of the spot where Thayer's body was found.

"It is our theory," said Investigator Fraser, "that some one sent Thayer a letter signed with Mrs. Mitchell's name, urging him to hurry to Detroit. This same person wrote Mrs. Mitchell the letter signed by Thayer, breaking off the love affair. This person waylaid Thayer and killed him."

Father Unaware of Slaying.

Thayer's father, James B. Thayer, who since his retirement has lived at 83 Euclid avenue, Battle Creek, Mich., is seriously ill in the Nichols hospital there. He has not been told of his son's death. His attorney, Willard A. Knight, arrived in Detroit last night to aid the police in solving the crime.

Woover by Mail Slain in Love Mystery; Detroit Pair Seized

Elvin E. Thayer, son of a wealthy retired Michigan farmer and an expert at winning women's hearts by mail, was lured from Chicago to Detroit a week ago and murdered.

Following out the theory that one of Thayer's long distance love affairs was involved, the Detroit police last night arrested Mrs. Mary N. Mitchell, a comely widow, who owns a boarding house in that city. She was Thayer's last conquest through a correspondence courtship. They also arrested Henry Kravenjar, alias Henry Keith, one of Mrs. Mitchell's star boarders, who is said to have been infatuated with her.

Letter Was Love, Belief.

Arthur Fraser, a special investigator sent here by the Detroit authorities, believes that Thayer was lured to Detroit by a letter written by Keith or some other person who signed Mrs. Mitchell's name. Thayer had taken out a license to wed Mrs. Mitchell in Jackson, Mich., on the day after Christmas.

Until yesterday Thayer's body had lain unidentified in a Detroit morgue. It was found eight days ago on the Pere Marquette tracks half way between Detroit and Dearborn, Mich. There was a bullet wound through the head and there were evidences that the man also had been beaten.

Traced by Laundry Mark.

Through a laundry mark, "E. E. T." and a check of the Ford laundry at 54 North State street, Investigator Fraser traced the man to the rooming house of Mrs. John Gannon at 114 East Ohio street.

Mrs. Gannon said Thayer, who had lived there for three years, had suddenly left for Detroit a week ago last Thursday, the day before the body was found.

Inquiries at the Kellors Switchboard company, where Thayer was employed, developed he had been missing since a week ago Wednesday.

With the identity of the victim practically established, the police visited his room. His trunk was open and on a table lay a note addressed to him.

Tells of Widow's Vile.

"O, yes," Mrs. Gannon said, "a woman came to see him the day after he left. She said she had come all the way from Detroit. Her name was Mitchell. She said Thayer had been writing love letters to her, but suddenly had sent a letter bidding her good-bye. She couldn't understand it and had come to see him. She went to his room and wrote the note to him."

The note upbraideth Thayer for his change of heart.

U. S. GUNBOATS MAY BE SENT TO MEXICAN PORTS

Blockade by Rebel Forces
Stirs Washington.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—(Special.)—Orders to send United States gunboats and gunships to the Mexican ports on which the De la Huerta government has declared a blockade are contemplated by naval officers, but such orders have not been announced by any competent authority.

The subject discussed at the Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt conferred with Secretary of State Hughes, and Mr. Hughes had a supplementary conference with the President.

The desire is to avoid mixing further in the Mexican civil war, but the progress of the revolt—the inevitable interference with the quadrilateral in the oil districts, and the hampering of the movement of American ships by the blockade—is making every day of intervention more probable every day.

FIGHT NEAR MEXICO CITY

Mexico City, Jan. 10.—(By the Associated Press.)—The last three days have seen considerable fighting at different points within the quadrilateral formed by the railway lines extending from Puebla to Tehuacan, thence to Esperanza, to San Marcos, to Puebla. The main federal column under Gen. Martineau is still holding Tehuacan, although cut off from Puebla. However, the road has been cleared of rebels by Gen. Urbalejo, who is present in at Tecuachalco, midway between Puebla and Tehuacan. Gen. Urbalejo is trying to repair the greatly damaged railway so as to reach Tehuacan and to reinforce Gen. Martineau. Gen. Urbalejo's advance upon Esperanza, has reached Minutilla.

BATTLES IN PUEBLA

BY FRANKLIN WRIGHT.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
(Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune.)
Mexico City, Jan. 10.—A war department bulletin from Gen. Bujarín, commanding the Vera Cruz column at Tehuacan, Puebla, reports his movements against the rebels in Puebla.

On leaving Puebla on the night of Jan. 11, Bujarín, under Gen. Topio, Gen. Barrios, and Gen. Cabanas moved from their stations to Tlaxiaco and Gen. Almazan with his cavalry to Tepic. Gen. Juan Barrios with the 15th battalion and 19th and 18th regiments occupied Rosendo Marquis and Tecuachalco.

On the morning of 13th Martineau ordered an advance on the rebels, attacking Gen. Almazan to attack the left flank, cutting the railway between Tehuacan and Esperanza, to cut off Gen. Martineau from the rebels. That night Gen. Topio led back with his brigade to Carmo and entered the town of Martineau. The rebels advanced along the Esperanza line toward Carmo. Gen. Barrios with 13 troops dislodged Almazan.

Between Otepec and Carmo. Rebel forces which recently captured Puebla today ambushed a military train in the state of Hidalgo between the capital and the Otepec headquarters at Irapuato.

The women's clubs of the capital started a three days campaign this morning with a small but enthusiastic audience. Numerous addresses were made urging the women to use their influence on the men to get them to stop fighting.

The president of the senate today summoned alternatives for the De la Huerta reconciliation in an effort to secure a quorum to approve the general claims convention with the United States.

The Star That Failed

MARJORIE RAMBEAU.
(White Photo.)

New York, Jan. 10.—(Special.)—The Frisco theater, where Marjorie Rambeau was seen last night in "The Road to Nowhere," was dark tonight, and official announcement was made on behalf of A. H. Woods, producer of the play, that the run of the piece was at an end.

The announcement from the Woods office declared that the play was being closed "at the request of George Middleton, the author, who was dissatisfied with the performance given on the opening night."

It was freely removed tonight that reference was being made solely to the performance of Miss Rambeau. Mr. Middleton refused to comment on the situation tonight, saying only that "the facts speak for themselves."

It was reported that Martin Hermann, who acted for A. H. Woods in the latter's absence in London, had canceled the star's contract, which called for a salary of $1,500 a week.

Miss Mary Carnahan, house president of the Evanston Women's Community club, an organization at 1455 Maple avenue, sponsored by Evanston's wealthiest and most prominent clubwomen, announced last night she will retain counsel today to keep from being ousted from her job.

Mrs. James A. Patton, president of the board of directors and head of the house committee, several members of which have asked for Miss Carnahan's resignation, declares that if the club at its meeting on Monday, decides Miss Carnahan shall go, she shall go, that's all.

"I have been given no reason why I should resign," Miss Carnahan said. "An employer doesn't have to give an employee a reason."

"All that is needed is, 'Your services are no longer required.'"

The club is composed of 150 young business women of Evanston, including some Northwestern students.

INSANITY PLEA
FAILS TO PROVE ESTATE CLAIM

Proof of his own insanity, offered by Richard C. Stafford, 43 years old, as an excuse for his failure to produce a will which would have yielded him the $400,000 estate of his brother, James Weir Stafford, was refused yesterday by Probate Judge Richard H. Carpenter.

The will, dated 1918, was carried about by the insane brother until a month ago, his attorney, Frank Jordan, declared. The law requires that a will be filed within a year after death.

Stafford's insanity should excuse his failure, Jordan argued.

The attorney declared he would appeal to the Circuit court. If Judge Carpenter's decision is upheld the estate will be divided between Edmund J. Stafford, a nephew, and his sister, as provided in an earlier will of James Weir Stafford.

REAL STORY NOT YET REVEALED, LINCOLN SAYS

Laughs at State's Theory
—Hints Mystery.

Warren G. Lincoln has not yet told the story which he will tell in court when brought to trial for the murder of his wife, Lina, and her brother, Byron, a shop.

In the first interview he has been permitted to give to newspaper men since he made the startling confession of how he killed his wife and then burned both her and shop's bodies in his greenhouse furnace, the eccentric lawyer-brother-in-law last night proved a puzzle to his questioners.

"Never mind what my story will be," he said, "but I'm not telling it until the time comes. It hasn't been told yet, and when I do tell it it'll be on the front page of the newspapers all right."

Then the slender prisoner gave vent to a low chuckle and tried to crush the conversation to another subject.

When told that Chief of Police Michaels of Aurora, who arrived from California yesterday, was planning to day to test the possibility or impossibility of his confession, he gave way to another chuckle.

"Don't worry about my defense or any charges against me," he said, "I'll take care of all that when the time comes."

Laughs at Prosecution.
When told that Chief Michaels had expressed the opinion that he was insane and that State's Attorney Abbott was planning to prove he killed both his wife and shop and buried their bodies instead of burning them, he said:

"So the state's attorney thinks he's got a good case, eh? He thinks he can find the bodies, eh?"

Lincoln laughed heartily as he turned back to his cards, with which he continually plays solitaire to his cell. As to his sanity, he said:

"No, he won't win. If they're planning on doing any hooking, my boy, I'll be there when the hooking comes off, and don't you forget it."

To Hunt for Bodies.
Immediately upon his return, Chief Michaels ordered instant action upon the following matters:

He rapidly as the earth is thrown digging will start on the Lincoln farm and the Indian Trail and every square foot is to be searched, perhaps to a depth of six feet.

A corpse of an animal is to be procured, cut up into large chunks, bones and all. One man is to build a fire

CHIEF PUTS 125 PLAIN CLOTHES MEN IN UNIFORM

Another step in the reorganization of the police department was taken last night by Chief Collins. He ordered 125 plain clothes men back into uniform and announced that he was considering a plan to increase the usefulness of police sergeants by forcing every one of the 400 to walk a "beat."

Comparative reports now in course of compilation indicate, he said, that a small headquarters staff of efficiency sergeants accomplishes more in the maintenance of discipline than the present admittedly overmanned corps of sergeants.

Sergeants are a liability rather than an asset," declared Chief Collins. "There are far too many of them. If the report shows that the headquarters efficiency squad is doing more than all the district sergeants toward the maintenance of morale, I shall discontinue the roundman system and let the downtown squad perform the work alone."

Abolition of the roundman system will release 111 sergeants for patrol duty. Soon after his appointment Chief Collins removed sergeants from behind station desks, put lieutenants in their stead, and assigned the sergeant to patrol work.

CHIEF PUTS 125 PLAIN CLOTHES MEN IN UNIFORM

Another step in the reorganization of the police department was taken last night by Chief Collins. He ordered 125 plain clothes men back into uniform and announced that he was considering a plan to increase the usefulness of police sergeants by forcing every one of the 400 to walk a "beat."

Comparative reports now in course of compilation indicate, he said, that a small headquarters staff of efficiency sergeants accomplishes more in the maintenance of discipline than the present admittedly overmanned corps of sergeants.

Sergeants are a liability rather than an asset," declared Chief Collins. "There are far too many of them. If the report shows that the headquarters efficiency squad is doing more than all the district sergeants toward the maintenance of morale, I shall discontinue the roundman system and let the downtown squad perform the work alone."

Abolition of the roundman system will release 111 sergeants for patrol duty. Soon after his appointment Chief Collins removed sergeants from behind station desks, put lieutenants in their stead, and assigned the sergeant to patrol work.

TWO CHICAGOANS FIND NEW BAR TO SCARLET FEVER

Test for Immunization Against It.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Immunity against the scourge of scarlet fever has been brought one step nearer to humanity as the result of experimental work by Dr. George W. Dick and Dr. Gladys Henry Dick of Chicago. It was learned yesterday at the offices of the American Medical Association.

A report on the experiments will be made in the Journal of the Association which issues next Saturday. It carries one step further the results announced last October, when the two doctors succeeded in producing experimental scarlet fever by preparing a filtrate from isolated streptococci.

This filtrate, it is indicated at the association office, when used for skin tests, similar to those employed for typhoid, discovered whether or not persons inoculated were immune to the disease.

A Step Further.

The next step, it is said, is the continuing of the experiments with filtrates toward the development of a method immunizing persons against the disease as is now done with diphtheria anti-toxin.

The scarlet fever serum tests made by Dr. Francis G. Blake of the Yale university school of medicine are not directly related to the work of the Chicago physicians.

The Dicks have been working in the John McCormick Institute for Infectious Diseases.

Several years ago it was the tendency among physicians to believe that scarlet fever was due to something besides the streptococcus (a round microbe in chains). These experiments now appear to show that the real cause of this germ, although in October Dr. Dick reported that the experiments do not justify the conclusion that all cases of scarlet fever are caused by the streptococcus described.

Two Cases Developed.

The culture was obtained from a nurse who had acquired scarlet fever in a mild but typical form. Five volunteers were inoculated by the swabbing of the tonsils with "four day old cultures of the hemolytic streptococcus grown on sheep's blood agar slants."

Two cases of experimental scarlet fever were developed, caused, apparently, by the isolated streptococcus or by some unrecognized organism closely associated with it in culture.

Carrying on this work under methods corresponding with the Schick test for diphtheria, it has been found that the skin will show the degree of immunity to this disease. To develop a serum that will work directly upon

The germs specified is now the hope of the medical profession.

Treatment of Measles.

Today's issue of the association journal contains an article on the use of convalescent serum in the prophylaxis of measles, by Dr. George H. Weaver and Dr. T. T. Crooks, also from the John McCormick Institute. Experiments upon sixty-three children exposed to measles were reported upon.

These statements are made:

"Children who have had measles, and babies during the first few months of life, do not readily contract measles."

"The main use of the serum seems to be limited to prophylaxis against measles when given within the first week of exposure. This protection is apparently a passive immunity, and its duration is limited."

It is suggested that the Chicago health department take steps for the collection of serum from all convalescent adults and older children, and preserve it for distribution when needed for the protection of children under 5 years of age.

HOLD UP NINE IN LOAN BANK, GRAB $40,000 IN GEMS

After compelling Jacob Klein, the proprietor, four clerks, and four customers to face the wall, three robbers yesterday looted a loan bank at 402 South Halsted street and escaped with diamonds and other jewelry valued at $40,000.

Klein and his clerks, waiting on three customers, were accosted by the thieves during the noon hour and hustled to the rear of the store.

While scores of pedestrians passed, one of the bandits collected diamonds and jewelry from the vaults and show cases.

As the bandit was reaching for gems in one of the display windows, a fourth customer entered. The man, at the point of a revolver, was compelled to join the eight in the rear.

After thanking Klein and threatening to shoot any one who moved for five minutes, the bandits bowed their way from the store and mingled with the crowds hurrying up and down Halsted street.

SPEEDERS PAY AT 2 A MINUTE RATE FOR THIS JURIST

Judge Adams Makes $11 a Minimum Fine.

BY DONALD EWING.

"What you traffic law violators need is some one to examine your heads. I can't do that, but I certainly can examine your pocketbooks, and here goes!"

With this edict, Judge Anna Adams, sitting temporarily in Speeders' court, yesterday placed both feet behind the drive against "minor" offenders with a series of fines that left clerks yelling for adding machines. The smallest figure he could say was $11—$5 and costs—while his mathematical vocabulary frequently reached the $50 and costs mark, and once got to the $100 figure.

Almost Two a Minute.

Three hundred and nineteen cases were disposed of in three hours—one in less than every thirty-six seconds. Only eleven men were discharged. Warrants were ordered for all who failed to appear. Such things as improper parking got the $11 minimum, while drunken driving caught the maximum.

The spectators liked it—for a while. They nudged each other after each sentence and whispered:

"O boy, ain't he socking 'em!"

"Then came the boomerang. 'Who are all these court crabs?' asked the judge as disposal of the last case found the courtroom still full."

"Look the doors, Mr. Bailiff. Every one who couldn't give a satisfactory explanation for his presence got the same sentence: 'Sixty dollars in the hall for the hat. We'll give it to charity to build insane asylums for careless drivers.'"

"But I haven't any money—only two L. tickets," protested one.

"But one in the hat," answered the judge.

Few Excuses Go.

Judge Adams, unlike lenient predecessors who have dealt reprimands or $1 fines to the "minor" violators—those not up for speeding—accepted few excuses.

"I didn't see the fire plug when I parked," volunteered Joseph Kodakus.

"Well, you see the clerk there, don't you? Give him $15 and costs," answered the judge.

"I didn't know it was a through street that I drove past," protested William Weiss.

"The man who doesn't stop at a through street endangers life as much as the speeder; $10 and costs," replied the judge.

"I turned the wrong switch," said George Akonia, up for glaring headlights.

"Your lights will cause as many accidents as speeding; $25 and costs," was the sentence.

Wrong Parking Costs $11.

Carl Henning paid $10 and costs for a dirty license plate, while Barney Erickson gave up $100 and costs for driving with a hip bottle as a self-starter. Men parking more than six inches from the curb paid $11, the judge explaining that they retarded traffic, thus endangering safety.

"There is no such thing as a 'minor' violator," explained Judge Adams afterward. "The man who shoots over a through street, who drives while drunk, who passes a car on the wrong side, or who parks wrong is endangering life just as much as the speeder. The only thing to do is to teach them a lesson with real sentences. That's what I tried to do today. Sometimes there are extenuating circumstances, but not often."

Several times Judge Adams literally examined the pocketbooks.

"How much money have you?" he asked one violator.

"Twenty-five dollars," was the answer.

"Give the clerk half," sentenced the judge.

PREDICT RECORD

Three days have passed without an automobile killing in Cook county, causing officials to predict yesterday that the cold weather may bring about the setting of a new record.

Only once in recent years has a longer period than three days passed without a motor fatality. That was early last summer, when the record of four days was established.

The Cook county motor death total for the fifteen days this year is twenty.

Police were asked yesterday to search for Isadore Saul, wealthy president of the Economy Wholesale Grocery company at 923 West Randolph street, who has been missing since Monday night. According to his wife, Saul left his home at 1635 North Avers avenue in an automobile to visit his parents at 2017 Crystal street, but never reached there.

Mrs. Saul said they had been married only ten months and had been happy. Saul's private secretary said the firm's business was good and his employer had not appeared to have any worries.

RUTH J. BROWNE, M. A.

THE PEACE PRIZE.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 18.—I have nothing but admiration for the man who said the world's court to Mr. Bok for a peace prize, but I don't see why they liked a poor and more ignorant folks for saying oil stocks, gold bricks and such like. We had a world's court in The Hague before the war, yet all international agreements became a scrap of paper. We are not to go into the league of nations, but to be close by—well, I don't know—I never heard of any gains, except here and there, where one country anything. Wouldn't it be better, if we are going to have anything to do with it, to get in all over instead of being just near enough to get our feet wet, and wouldn't we be in more danger of ending our death of cold by getting our feet wet than by going in all over? And if we are just going to look in, won't we have to look out? And if we do go anything, won't we be something still the more in the dock when the judge invites us to say something before sentence is passed?

We had a ship load of moral force sent over to Europe before the war peace dove and all, yet they brought back no olive branch. We have discovered our old eagle is not what he is cracked up to be and want to change him into the golden eagle. Why wouldn't it be a good idea to change our peace dove to a turkey and talk turkey? The world's court is evidently not to try us, as we haven't done nothing to anybody, but to try themselves. Well, why not have it over here? Los Angeles would jump at the chance to get it, I bet.

DOO HANSON.

TWO MANY LAWS.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Answering John M. Fairweather, I would say that the reason there are such big holes in the law is that we have too many laws and too many statutes. Also too many amendments to the constitution. There used to be a good old rule which I have found it very safe to observe, "Never give an order you can't enforce." The literal fact is that no government can enforce one-tenth the laws we have on the books, for the simple reason that most of the people don't want most of those laws. What any considerable number of people doesn't want doesn't last long, and so far as I have been able to find out there's no power whatever that can make it be done.

BUILD THE CALUMET HARBOR; DON'T TALK IT TO DEATH.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Your editorial in regard to Calumet lake harbor I think absolutely correct. It should not be truncated. Commissioner Sprague evidently does not understand the situation. It makes no difference whether one railroad company or twenty-three own and operate the railroad, the switching charges will be there just the same. I see no advantage to the city in having twenty-three railroads own the belt line, and I would like to know if Commissioner Sprague sees one. What is it?

My understanding is that the Nickel Plate owns all the property around the lake, except that owned by the Pullman company. They not only would have to sell the right of way to the other roads but give them access to it. W. C. HURV.

RINGWOOD IS A TRAILIN' HOUND.

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn.—Ringwood, the little hound that turned loose to find runaway dogs, drew considerable attention as the pointers and setters at the All-American field trials held last week. But this little black-tan hound is unique, what with training the way in which he was almost to look at him wouldn't think that he could step and locate high priced dogs that he barked for parts unknown.

Ringwood lauded around in the wagon most of the time, as practically all of the pointers and setters that were entered in the field trials were trained to range far and wide of a course but were always with the stealing dogs, and he was

The idea, of course, is to get a fr wide going dog that will cover a of ground, but one that has good s and training enough that will not b it for the next county when tur loose. But one dog at the All-Am ica was as wild as a March hare. a matter of fact Hawk's Ghost

The Ghost is as handsome a set of as any fellow would want. But timber. When we caught up with the crowd a few minutes later we were told that the Ghost was lost.

So no one, not even the judges, had a chance to see this mad setter in action except as it disappeared from view going like a race horse.

On the day that Ringwood had search for the Ghost the fellows made on Man o' War's track, so some time was lost, as the hound tore around through fields and woods until he finally came up to Man o' War. I had tracked the dog he was directed to follow, but I was the wrong one so they had to start over again.

Later on Ribwood rang the bell with his trillin' as he was put on the right track and the runaway Ghos was brought back to its irate handler.

INDICTMENTS IN SMALL CASE LAG; MORE IN OFFING

No new indictments were returned yesterday in the Smale "hijacking-jury-bribing case," but indications were that the government is going all the way.

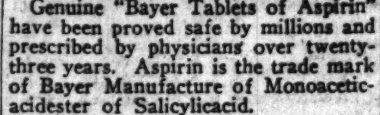

Edward Smale Jr., whose acquittal in the hijacking trial was followed by his indictment on a jury fixing charge, was shifted from county jail here to the jail in Syracuse, Ill., after William A. Lewis, Mary Bedard had been removed from Syracuse by Marshal Robert Levy.

Marshal Levy said this move was made so Smale would not come in contact with the other defendants, who will testify before the federal grand jury.

Thus far three men have been indicted on allegations of buying a motorcycle for the purpose of a "hot" car collection involved in the homecoming. Assistant District Attorney Edwin L. Weiss said at least six more would be hit by true bills.

He made a motion during the day that the jury verdict be accepted, but Judge Curre did not hear it.

Suffering Is Great.
"Will you please ask if some reader has a comfortable chair to give away? I know a sick man, the father of eight children under 14, who has been unable to work for twenty months on account of asthma. At times the suffering is so great he is obliged to sit up day after day and night after night in a small airy chair. Through the recent cold spell he could not go to bed, and I'm sure if some one has a good roomy chair with a foot rest and high back she will be glad to help the poor man be made as comfortable as possible. We would gladly call for anything offered."
"M. R."

This is an opportunity to do a real work of kindness, and I hope I can tell M. R. in the near future that she may call somewhere for a chair.

HOW TO BE HAPPY THOUGH MARRIED

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The annual waste in American homes is estimated at $500,000,000. "Suppose even half of this," suggests Margaret W. Eggleston, "could be saved by thrifty mothers and turned into educational channels! I know of a home where there are four girls and a boy. The father is a working man and the only support of the family. Yet a clerk in an ice cream shop nearby told me the family spent an average of 75 cents a day for drinks in the summer and for candy in the winter. That is nearly $300 a year. It would pay university tuition for that boy, yet he is going to work because the family cannot afford to send him to college."

Mrs. Eggleston makes a strong plea to the mothers of daughters to train them, from childhood, how to spend and to save. What a world of domestic unhappiness would be spared if this teaching were inculcated in early years! There is no question but that the child indulged in her every demand for money becomes the spendthrift of later years. One may no more expect restraint in this direction in the adult who has been indulged in childhood than one may hope to make a good citizen out of one who has not been taught respect, obedience, and moral restraint in her youth.

Not so many years ago a girl thought that she was rich if she had a dollar given to her. Today she expects to carry more than that in her purse to spend as she likes. "Training the crowd" is teaching the girl to spend thoughtlessly.

Out of her wide experience in work with young girls, Mrs. Eggleston suggests giving the girl an allowance when she is small, increasing it as she grows older, at the same time increasing the number of things which she must purchase with the money and giving to her ideas of thrift, which, in return, will help much in making her a careful mother, a better housekeeper, and a more helpful wife.

To offset the waste for families which causes many a girl to insist upon having clothes which the home cannot afford the mother is urged to show the girl the joy of wearing a dress she herself has made. Rather than by emphasizing the necessity of sewing when she might want to be playing, let the mother show a pride in the work that is done. Let the girl feel the thrill of pleasure that comes when a task well done is appreciated.

"All girls should be expected to help in the home tasks to some degree, but we can let them earn spending money by doing extra tasks," says Mrs. Eggleston. "The gift of a dime bank to a 14 year old girl will often set her to finding ways by which to earn a dime—and dimes grow to dollars while she is learning to do her tasks well."

A girl who is trained in the saving and spending of money is never so likely to gamble on a matrimonial uncertainty as the girl brought up to think that money will come from somewhere. She has learned the advantages of thrift, and she knows just how far a dollar will carry her.

GOOP DIALOGUES

A Daily Lesson in Manners for Children

BY GELETT BURGESS

TATTLE TALE
When parents ask "Who did it?"—well, Of course you really ought to tell. But telling every thing you know About another's faults, is so Unkind, unfriendly and unclear, Only a Goop would be so mean.

NOTE—If you know any Goop facts you want corrected, drop a note to Mr. Gelett Burgess, care of this paper, and perhaps he will draw a picture and write a verse about it.

to him about me which has changed him a whole lot. I can't find out what it is from other of them. When he is with other fellows and girls he ignores me, but when I meet him going home he stands and talks to me. He says this girl didn't tell him anything and that if I don't believe him he doesn't care. Please don't advise me to give him up, as I love him too much, but tell me what to do.

"Poor!"
Perhaps, Peggy, dear, you are accusing the girl unjustly. You know, sometimes we weak humans, rather than admit our charms, have lost some of that first magnetism, rather than believe an interfering third person at fault. You care a lot for the boy; don't you perhaps you make that just a trifle too obvious. I wouldn't ask him what the girl said.

Wishing I was Luck.
"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl, 21, and in love with a fellow 25. Recently we had a fight over another girl, and I did not speak to him for six weeks. Then we became friends again but he won't go out together. I would like to know how to go about it so we can go out together again, as I love him. He tells me he does not go out with the other girl."

Cannot you make up to him with an invitation to your home? Then when he comes make a little extra fuss over him, and leave the other girl out of your conversation. If you bring her name up, you will only prolong the feud. Here's hoping you will have good luck so life will be all smiles again for you.

SMILEY-WILEYS

A Smiley-Wiley is a little of two kinds. Any funny little rhyme that will make a laugh is a Smiley-Wiley. For instance:

May your life be filled with roses.
And your kids have turned to roses.
You can probably write a better one than this, so do it and mail it to the Smiley-Wiley Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. The Tribune will pay $1 for every Smiley-Wiley that is published.

Jack received, on New Year's day, to do something every day throughout the year to please some one. Last week he went to spend two days with an aunt. When he returned home his mother asked, "Jackie, what did you do to please auntie yesterday?"

"I went to see her," was the prompt reply.
"And did you do anything today to please her?"

The New York Times

New York, Jan. 10.—(Special).—On the stock exchange today's movement was of price duplicated Thursday's; it was a purposeless market, rising and falling fractionally as the whim of speculative speculations changed. Advances and declines for the day were numerous, but they were not of sufficient magnitude to be of any consequence. The market was not particularly well balanced, and changes of more than a fraction occurred for the most part in unimportant or inactive issues.

This attitude of the stock market during recent days reflects the stationary condition of general trade and the absence of indications either of a "boom" or a "reaction." In due course there will undoubtedly be a change, for better or worse, but perhaps it is early in the season to look for it.

Nothing occurred in today's foreign exchange market to throw new light on the European situation. Sterling declined slightly, going within a fraction of Monday's low, for the reason that France yielded slightly, although holding substantially above the week's worst figures.

But the fact that the present center of struggle over French values is not New York but London and Paris was shown by the violence of the day's movement on these markets. On Monday the pound sterling's value in French currency advanced 5 francs 40 centimes; on Tuesday it declined 30 centimes; on Wednesday, 1.80; on Thursday, 1.85; and today 5.70—all this commotion changing the price only one centime from 12.40.

Standard Trust Elects

Joseph C. Barth Auditor

Directors of the Standard Trust and Savings bank elected Joseph C. Barth auditor. The bank will move early next month probably into the banking quarters formerly occupied by the Merchants' Loan and Trust at Adams and Clark streets.

FINANCIAL NOTES

New traders yesterday favored their attack on such speculative favorites as Standard Oil, American Can, and Standard Oil, but they encountered some resistance, and the day's closing levels and with little success. Some of the sellers in reported to have been inspired by the market letters of some of the larger commission houses predicting that the market was entering a trading era, pending more definite indications of the trend of spring business.

Special strength followed, however, in various sections of the list. It was particularly prominent in such issues as Lehigh Valley, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Pullman, S. S. Washburn, and American Union Gas. New York stock preferred, and yesterday's gain of 1/16 point above Thursday's level, the highest point since the 1920 boom, was not reached until 1:30 p. m. on the day.

Steel shares held relatively steady in the afternoon, but they were not particularly popular. The market was not particularly popular, and the day's closing levels and with little success. Some of the sellers in reported to have been inspired by the market letters of some of the larger commission houses predicting that the market was entering a trading era, pending more definite indications of the trend of spring business.

Notations are being continued by the Standard Oil company for the purchase of the small steel companies, including the American Steel company, according to reports from Wall Street. Plans are being made for the purchase of a company with a capitalization of $1,000,000.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

BULLETIN.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
LONDON, Jan. 19 (2:30 a. m.)—(Tribune Radio.)—At 2:25 o'clock (Sunday) morning, after an eight-hour conference with delegates from the Trades Union congress headed by Miss Margaret Bondfield, the executives of the Locomotive Engineers and Firemen union unanimously passed a resolution not to withdraw the strike notice. The union's final proposals of a 10% wage increase for the next year were rejected. More than 700,000 engineers and firemen are under orders to strike at midnight.
BY JOHN STEELE.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
LONDON, Jan. 19.—(Tribune Radio.)—Unless an eleven-hour political debate happens England will be ruled by a Socialist government before the week is out. Except for those who believe in the "British Empire" and those who believe in "weak knees and a little faith," no one here is much concerned about the future of the country.
Socialists without responsibility for the way of running the country, but who have the weight of office on their shoulders, they become like a pack of wild dogs. They have the appearance of a pack of wild dogs, but they are not. They are a pack of wild dogs.
The Socialists in Britain and Ireland, Germany under the Socialists, and Australia under a Socialist government. There is no reason why England should not have the same experience under Socialist Ramsay MacDonald, who, according to present indications, will become prime minister on Thursday.
Nervous people point to the example of Russia, but the Socialists are not the kind of people who are killed off by the Socialists. They are the kind of people who are killed off by the Socialists.
A Minority Government.
There is also another factor of Mr. MacDonald's government, which is much as that of Baldwin, whom he is turning out of control, will be only a minority in the house of commons.
The only thing in power while it is the support of the Liberals, and Mr. Asquith has indicated plainly that he is willing to put the Socialists in power and give them his support so long as their policy runs on parallel lines with Liberalism. He will not stand for any Socialist experiments.
There are several things which Labor will do, however, which will secure the support of the great bulk of the Liberal party. Among them is a list of progressive reforms which have been held up by politics and the opposition of the vested interests of the old parties which the Liberals are not dare to offend by taking the lead in doing. But they will now be able to do it, and it is a threat that if they do not, the Liberal party will be forced to support a government of Socialists.
FINANCIAL Educational Facilities.
And among such measures are extension of the mother's pension, extension of free educational facilities, extension of old age pensions, beginning at an earlier age, and a land policy which will facilitate the breakup of the great estates and the purchase of fresh land for occupying it. These are only a few typical measures on which Labor has secured Liberal support.
Labor is also committed to the abolition of the McKenna war time control system, which afford protection to British industries, and the abolition of the system of the support of the British Empire.
The foreign policy the Labor and Liberal parties are identical. Mr. MacDonald is determined to obtain the same treatment of Germany by France as was given to her by the British. He is determined that Germany should be treated as a nation, and that this should be done by the British.
The plan is to make a trade agreement with Russia.
Drive Against Labor Fals.
The effort to turn a Liberal drive against the Labor amendment to the constitution from the throne now seems to have failed and it is likely that all the Liberal will follow Mr. MacDonald into the division lobby on Monday night. The Labor party, on the other hand, is determined to stand against the government, and is expected to be between 100,000 and 200,000 strong.
